“On January 12, 2010, Haiti was hit by an earthquake of magnitude 7.3 in Richter scale. The epicenter was located 16km from the capital and the earthquake hit an area where they live more than 2.5 million people, the majority in conditions of absolute poverty. The first emergency teams delivered aid and carried out an assessment of needs. Currently, the population needs repair, medical kits and water purification, to clinics for emergency medicine, and food. The international mobilization to help the three million Haitians affected by the disaster is massive, but to address the consequences of the disaster will require extra investment.” – AGIRE Website
